Resilient Cities Co-Patron

I extend a warm welcome to the participants of Resilient Cities 2017! It is with pride and pleasure that I serve as co-patron of the world's leading platform for urban resilience and climate adaptation.

Since the first edition in 2010, the Resilient Cities congress has provided a valuable platform for urban leaders, expert researchers and implementation partners. Furthermore, it helps to advance the advocacy efforts of local leaders by communicating key messages and needs identified here in international climate debates and other major global agendas.

In November 2017, Bonn will welcome the next UNFCCC COP, hosted by UNFCCC and chaired by Fiji islands, with over 20,000 delegates. During the COP, ICLEI, the City of Bonn, the state of North-Rhine Westphalia and other partners will open the floor to pioneering examples from cities and regions with a special program, culminating in a one-day summit bringing local and regional leaders together. The outcomes of Resilient Cities will of course feed into the design of this summit.

Once again, the congress program will present a broad range of local examples on a variety of resilience topics from health impacts to financing, and from nature-based approaches to high-tech solutions. The City of Bonn, for example, has recently joined several pilot initiatives to assess our climate risks and to increase resilience. We also joined a pilot initiative for holistic sustainability strategies called "Globally sustainable local government". I look forward to sharing our experiences over the next three days and I sincerely hope you feel inspired by the discussions and networking at Resilient Cities 2017 and that you leave with many new contacts and ideas!

Won-Soon Park

Mayor, Seoul Metropolitan Government, Republic of Korea

ICLEI President

As President of ICLEI - Local Governments for Sustainability, it is my honor to welcome you to Resilient Cities 2017!

Local governments are often in the best position to respond quickly and effectively during a crisis, as Seoul learned firsthand during the 2015 MERS outbreak. When the Republic of Korea was going through the outbreak with 186 patients and 38 people dying, Seoul emphasized that "over-protection is better than late action" and opened the information to the citizens. The quick response from the capital of the Republic of Korea led the national government to act, hence we were able to overcome the crisis.

In a fast-changing and interconnected world, cities and local governments must be prepared to take a leading role against disasters and emerging risks that disrupt the lives of citizens and can quickly escalate to impact the city's social, political, and economic resilience. In fact, cities and local governments are closer to the citizens than the national governments. They hear from the citizens and respond quickly and effectively. They are also uniquely equipped to turn complex challenges into opportunities by tapping into the intellectual, technological, and investment capital concentrated in the cities. Additionally, by partnering with diverse stakeholders, cities and local governments can optimize urban infrastructure to better anticipate and respond to risks.

The 8th Resilient Cities congress will provide an opportunity for you to share the challenges and ambitions of your cities and communities as well as find the appropriate solutions. Let us get together and harness the collective "people power" of our citizens to build resilient cities!

Patricia Espinosa

Executive Secretary of the United Nations
Framework Convention on Climate Change

Resilient Cities Co-Patron

Resilient Cities 2017 is a key event aimed at raising awareness and catalyzing action among urban actors to develop cities capable of minimizing the risks and seizing the opportunities of the 21st century.

I am truly excited by the range and the depth of initiatives showcased: they provide inspiration for implementation of the Paris Climate Change Agreement, the Sustainable Development Goals, and the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction.

Cities, regions, states, and territories are along with business, investors, and citizens proving themselves essential allies of national government policies towards realizing a sustainable future.

Evidence can be found in cases around the world, from Belo Horizonte's urban agriculture in over 120 schools and nearly 50 community gardens; Iloilo, Philippines' use of insurance for farmers to cope with extreme weather events; Copenhagen, Denmark's Cloudburst Management Plan - the first city wide plan to control a 100-year storm; to Accra, Ghana's adaptation initiatives linked with better building codes and early warning systems.

Resilient Cities 2017 is a real opportunity to learn but also to connect the urban agenda to potential support from and cooperation with the intergovernmental arena; for example, by connecting city leaders to initiatives like the G7 Climate Risk Insurance Initiative, the UN Environment's Sustainable Insurance Forum for Supervisors, and the UNFCCC Clearinghouse for Risk Transfer.

I wish ICLEI and delegates every success in May as we also look forward to the 2017 UN Climate Change conference also taking place in our host city Bonn in November.

Resilient Cities 2017 | Program Book

The program for the 8th Global Forum on Urban Resilience and Adaptation is replete with sessions which underline the critical role that cities will play in preventing future disasters and making urban spaces disaster-resilient places to work and to raise a family in safety.

The challenges are tremendous. Water management. Urban health. Ecosystem services. Effective integration of disaster and climate risk. Insurance. Earthquake risk. Reception of asylum seekers and refugees. These are just a sampling of the topics that will be discussed over these exciting three days in Bonn.

What is encouraging to me is to see the clear connections in the Global Forum sessions between the achievement of SDG 11, making cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable, and the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, the two year-old global plan for reducing disaster losses.

Both share the targets of substantially reducing the number of deaths, the number of people affected, and direct economic losses caused by disasters with a focus on protecting the poor and people in vulnerable situations.

Sadly, we have seen evidence from recent events in Peru, Colombia, Madagascar, and Haiti that the urban environment is often not of a standard required to protect human life and this is usually because of multiple failings in addressing disaster risk management at the local level.

Urban resilience also has many success stories. Forum participants can look forward to many positive examples and case studies from around the world of cities which are taking up the resilience challenge on a daily basis and achieving remarkable progress. The Global Forum is an invaluable showcase for their efforts and for stimulating others to follow suit.

Robert Glasser

Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Disaster Risk Reduction, United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction

Resilient Cities Co-Patron

Welcome to the 8th edition of Resilient Cities! Since the first congress, we have seen the field of urban resilience and adaptation expand and mature. Resilience is now widely recognized as a cross-cutting issue for all levels of government that encompasses environmental and climate change threats as well as disaster and socio-economic risks.

A growing community of practice has come together to accelerate progress and address gaps like finance and measuring & reporting. These coalition-building efforts continue, with a new emphasis on multi-sectoral alliances for integrated resilience planning.

Such partnerships are essential for the inclusive, resource efficient, low-carbon, and disaster resilient policies and plans governments have called for in target 11b of the Sustainable Development Goals and target e of the Sendai Framework. Both are due in 2020 and will pave the way for the remaining goals. So now is the time to refocus attention at the local level and get to work putting our collective vision into action!

Resilient Cities 2017 will do so by supporting knowledge exchange amongst a diverse group of actors and sectors. Over 50 local governments will report on progress made and persistent or emerging challenges. Experts from the health, transport, humanitarian, and insurance sectors will discuss how to strengthen ties with the urban resilience community, including at the first ever Insurance Industry & Cities Summit on Friday, 5 May. Participants will also have the chance to consult on new global initiatives under development, and suggest specific areas where further support is needed.

Outcomes will be conveyed to the 2017 Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction, the UN Climate Conference (COP23), the 2018 Cities and Climate Change Science Conference, and most importantly, to your cities, towns, and regions! I encourage you to “go big and go home” with your ideas and ambitions this year and I wish you a successful congress.

Presenters:
Cross-Atlantic collaboration – New York City and Copenhagen

- Lykke Leonardsen, Program Director, City of Copenhagen, Denmark

Building eco-efficiency through strategic partnerships: The experience of La Paz and Bonn

- Mariana Daza von Boeck, Municipal Secretary of Environmental Management, La Paz, Bolivia

The Nigeria Resilient Cities Network

- Michael Mutter, Visiting Professor and Chairman of Nigeria Resilient Cities Network, University of Westminster, London, UK

The value of inter-city coordination for improved disaster risk management and public health services in the Philippines

- Weena Gera, Assistant Professor, University of the Philippines Cebu, Cebu City, Philippines

Multi-stakeholder collaboration for strengthening disaster resilience of SMEs

- Florian Rhiza Nery, Business Continuity Program Manager, Philippine Disaster Resilience Foundation, Makati, Philippines

PRESENTATIONS A1

City-to-city collaboration and other strategic partnerships to enhance urban resilience

Room: S30-32

Facilitator: Charlotte MacAlister, Senior Program Officer, IDRC, Ottawa, Canada

Panelists:

- Chandra Lal Pandey, Senior Research Fellow, South Asia Institute of Advanced Studies, Kathmandu, Nepal
- Emami Kumar, Deputy Secretary General, ICLEI - Local Governments for Sustainability and Executive Director, ICLEI South Asia, New Delhi, India
- Juan Darío Restrepo Ángel, Professor, Department of Earth Sciences, School of Sciences, EAFIT University, Medellín, Colombia
- Ana Maria Caetano Pereira, Public Policy Analyst for Municipal Committee on Climate Change and Ecoefficiency, Secretariat of Environment, Municipality of Belo Horizonte, Brazil

Organized in cooperation with the International Development Research Centre (IDRC)

PANEL A2

Innovative strategies for water management in fast-growing cities

Room: S01-02

Facilitator: Paul Wilkinson, Professor Environmental Epidemiology, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, London, UK

Panelists:

- Jonathon Taylor, Senior Research Associate, University College London, London, UK
- Paul Wilkinson, Professor Environmental Epidemiology, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, London, UK
- Steve Lindsay, Public Health Entomologist, Durham University, Adviser to the World Health Organization, Durham, UK
- Sari Kovats, Director of the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR), Health Protection Research Unit in Environmental Change and Health (HPRU ECH), London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, London, UK
- Md. Moinul Islam, Senior Urban Planner, Gazipur City, Bangladesh

PANEL A3

Urban health in a changing environment: Challenges and opportunities

Room: S34-35

Facilitator: Meggan Spires, Senior Manager, ICLEI Africa Secretariat, Cape Town, South Africa

Panelists:

- Allan Duncan Julius Kwanjana, Director of Environment, Parks and Recreation, Lilongwe City Council, Lilongwe, Malawi
- Sikhumbuzo Ncube, Engineer, Bulawayo City Council, Bulawayo, Zimbabwe
- Estella Nakaluzwe Mbulo, Environmental Planner, Lusaka City Council, Lusaka, Zambia
- Sylvester Mitini-Nkhoma, Director, Department of Leisure, Culture and Environmental Services, Blantyre City Council, Blantyre, Malawi
- Franz Marré, Head of Division for Water, Urban Development and Transport, German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ), Bonn, Germany
- Researcher respondents from Lilongwe, Bulawayo, Lusaka and Blantyre

PANEL A4

Local enactment of SDG 11: Reflections from four Southern African cities

Room: S25-26

A5 FACILITATED DISCUSSION

Designing fundable projects to access climate finance

Room: S29-31

Facilitator: James Alexander, Director, Finance and Economic Development Initiative, C40 Cities Climate Leadership Group, London, UK (tbc)

Speakers:

- Darius Nassiry, Climate Finance Expert, Overseas Development Institute, London, UK (tbc)
- John Tidmarsh, Chief Investment Officer, R20, Geneva, Switzerland (tbc)
- Laura Kavanaugh, Program Manager, Resilient Cities, ICLEI World Secretariat, Bonn, Germany
- TAP cities representatives from: Recife and Curitiba, Brazil; Rajkot, India; Bogotá, Colombia and Catbalogan, Philippines

B1 REALITY CHECK WORKSHOP REVISITED!

Adaptation on the ground: Copenhagen, Denmark

Room: S25-26
* 16:00 - 18:00

Facilitator: Lykke Leonardsen, Program Director, City of Copenhagen, Denmark

Inputs:

- Lykke Leonardsen, Program Director, City of Copenhagen, Denmark
- Christian Nyerup Nielsen, Director, Climate Adaptation, Rambøll, Copenhagen, Denmark
- Arne Bent Hasling, Senior Project Manager, COWI, Lyngby, Denmark

Summary: The workshop will explore how the city has continued its adaptation work since 2012, when Copenhagen presented its first Reality Check Workshop. Since 2012, the city has developed an ambitious Cloudburst Management Plan – the first citywide plan to control 100-year storm events – and started working on a Storm Surge Plan, for which the city would like to receive feedback from peer cities and adaptation experts.

B2 PRESENTATIONS

Integrating ecosystem-based adaptation and ecosystem services into urban management strategies

Room: S34-35

Facilitator: Sean O'Donoghue, Manager, Climate Protection Branch, Environmental Planning and Climate Protection Department, eThekwin Municipality/Durban, South Africa

Presenters:

Ecosystem Services Framework as a tool to assess environmental trade-offs

- Harald Zepp, Professor, Ruhr-University Bochum, Bochum, Germany

Guimarães climate change adaptation strategy

- Amadeu Portilha, Vice Mayor, Guimarães Municipality, Portugal; and
- Isabel Loureiro, Executive Coordinator, Guimarães Municipality, Portugal

Measuring urban resilience in China: Sponge city demonstration cases

- Yan Zheng, Associate Research Fellow, Institute of Urban and Environmental Studies, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, Beijing, China; and
- Li Ying, Associate Research Fellow, National Climate Center, China Meteorological Administration, Beijing, China

Peri-urban ecosystem for urban resilience: Experiences from the Indo-Gangetic plains of India

- Nivedita Mani, Coordinator, Ecosystems Working Group, ACCCRN.NET, Gorakhpur, India; and
- Ajay Kumar Singh, Coordinator, Gorakhpur Environmental Action Group, Gorakhpur, India

B3 WORKSHOP

Tools to implement and track mitigation and adaptation in the built environment

Room: S01-02

Facilitators:

- Elizabeth Beardsley, Senior Policy Counsel, U.S. Green Building Council, Washington DC, USA
- Jamie Statter, Vice President, Green Business Certification Inc., Washington DC, USA

Summary: This workshop will engage participants in learning about key resilience considerations of the built environment at several scales. The facilitators will introduce and use several tools for understanding resilience opportunities for buildings, landscapes, micro-grids, and communities, and how they can be used to drive specific outcomes. Participants will be introduced to the resilience applications of Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED), the Sustainable SITES Rating System, the Performance Excellence in Electricity Renewal (PEER) rating system, and the new LEED for Cities platform.

REALITY CHECK WORKSHOP D4 REVISITED!

Resilient city: Quito, Ecuador

Room: S34-35

* 11:00 - 13:00

Summary: The aim of this workshop is to present the first stage of Quito's preliminary resilience assessment, and discuss the emerging concerns about tools for the city's development and to get input from cities facing similar challenges. The city will present its Eco-efficiency tool and its innovative urban farming program and will receive comments and suggestions for improvements to be made in the future. Participants will learn from each other how to address transit-oriented development and economic development-related issues.

To discuss partnership opportunities for congress sessions, forums, co-events, and exhibition, please contact us at resilient.cities@iclei.org.

Call for contributions opens in September 2017!

Exhibition is open all day from 4 to 6 May in room S05-06

UN-Habitat is the United Nations programme working to promote socially and environmentally sustainable human settlements development and the achievement of adequate shelter for all. Mandated by the UN General Assembly in 1978 to address the issues of urban growth, it is a knowledgeable institution on urban development processes, and understands the aspirations of cities and their residents.

Established in 1972 by the UN General Assembly, the United Nations Environment Programme (UN Environment) is the global environmental authority that sets the global environmental agenda, promotes coherent implementation of the environmental dimension of sustainable development within the UN system, and serves as an authoritative advocate for the global environment.

The Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) is responsible for formulating the principles and strategies of German development policy, which form the basis of cooperation with partner countries and international organisations. Sustainable urban development is recognised as a key element for achieving international development and climate goals and therefore constitutes a significant field of German development policy. BMZ actively contributes to shape the international debate on urbanization and works together with partners to create livable cities for all.

The UN-FAO, the RUAF Foundation, the CGIAR Research Program on Water, Land and Ecosystems (WLE) on Rural-Urban Linkages, co-led by the International Water Management Institute (IWMI) and the RUAF Foundation, seek to contribute to building resilient and sustainable food and agriculture systems with stronger urban-rural linkages that ensure improved food and nutrition security for all. They support applied research on city region food systems and the safe recovery of water, nutrients and energy from urban waste streams for reuse in agriculture, and the multi-stakeholder assessment and planning of sustainable and resilient city region food systems.

EUROCLIMA, financed by the European Commission, aims to promote green growth and to reinforce the resilience of Latin America to climate change. Local communities can learn from experiences in other Latin American countries. Therefore EUROCLIMA supports the initiatives of Adapt-Chile, a not-for-profit organization based in Chile, that works since 2013 to identify, develop and promote responses to climate change at the local level.

The European Green Capital Award promotes and rewards the efforts of cities that are committed to improving the urban environment. European Green Leaf Award is a competition aimed at cities, with between 20,000 and 100,000 inhabitants, to recognise their achievements in green growth.

Derived from classical Greek, our name refers to the supporting tissues that help transport water and nutrients from a plant's roots to its leaves. To the people of Xylem, our name stands for our promise to live our values while solving our customers' most challenging water problems, and to set industry standards for fluid technology applications and water solutions.

Most cities worldwide don't uphold WHO air quality guidelines, causing millions of premature deaths every year. Fixing this problem requires vast amounts of air quality data, which traditional solutions cannot yield. Hawa Dawa, a Munich RE Fellowship startup, developed a bottom-up air quality monitoring technique, providing remote, real-time & in-situ air quality data anywhere, anytime: essential database for change and prevention.

Exhibition is open all day from 4 to 6 May in room S05-06

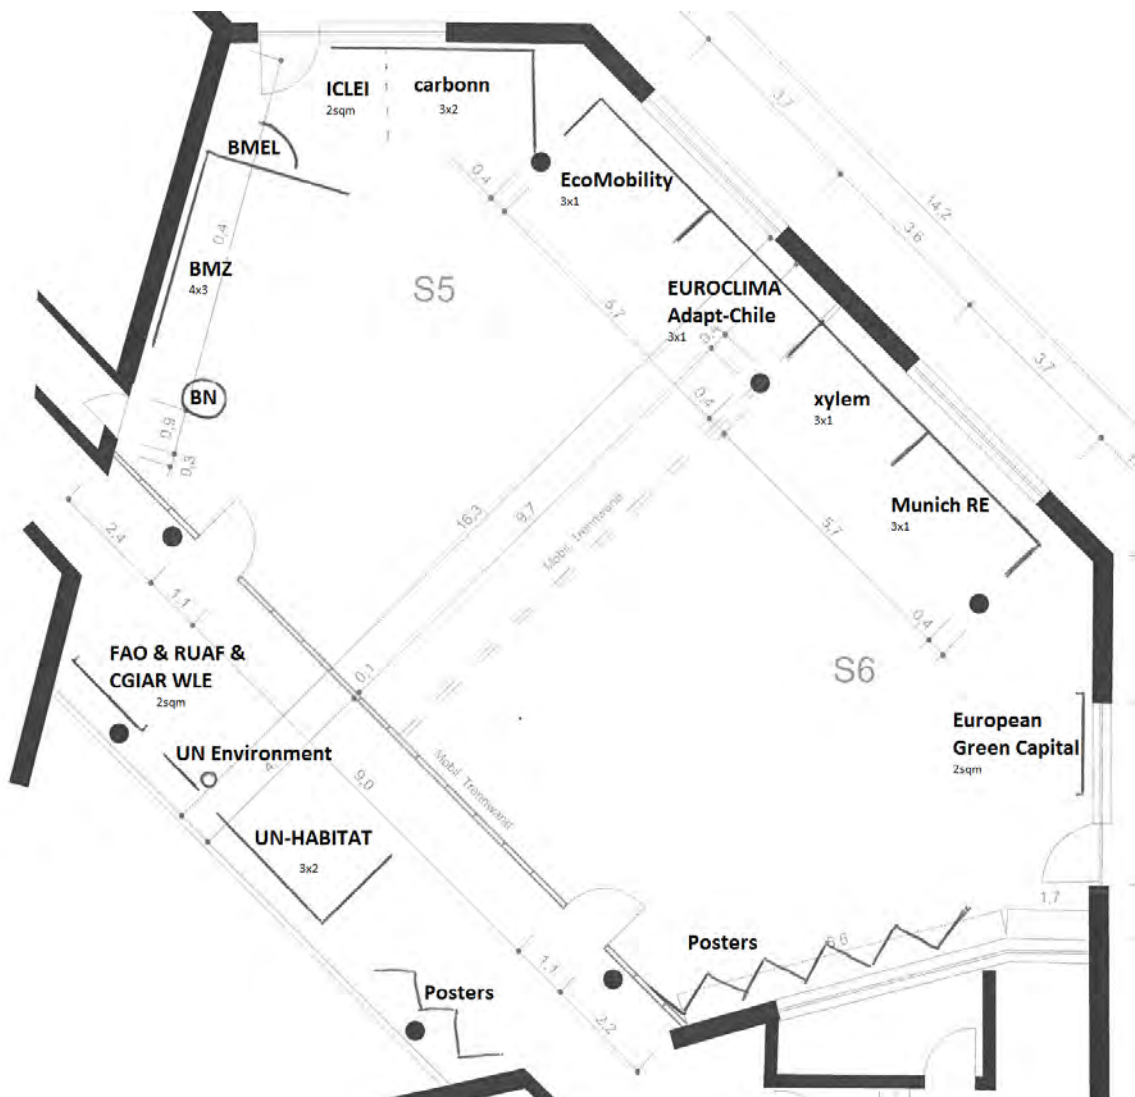

Kaohsiung City in Chinese Taipei will host the 3rd EcoMobility World Festival in October 2017. The Festival will enable the city to free valuable urban space from car traffic by opening the streets of the Hamasen neighborhood in Kaohsiung, Chinese Taipei exclusively for ecomobile modes of transport such as walking, cycling, public transport, shared vehicles, and light electric vehicles. www.ecomobilityfestival.org

The cCR is the world's leading reporting platform to enhance transparency, accountability, and credibility of local and subnational climate action. Over 720 cities and regions, representing over 9% of the world's total population report to the cCR, with an aggregated commitment of 1 GtCO₂e emission reductions by 2020. <http://carbonn.org>

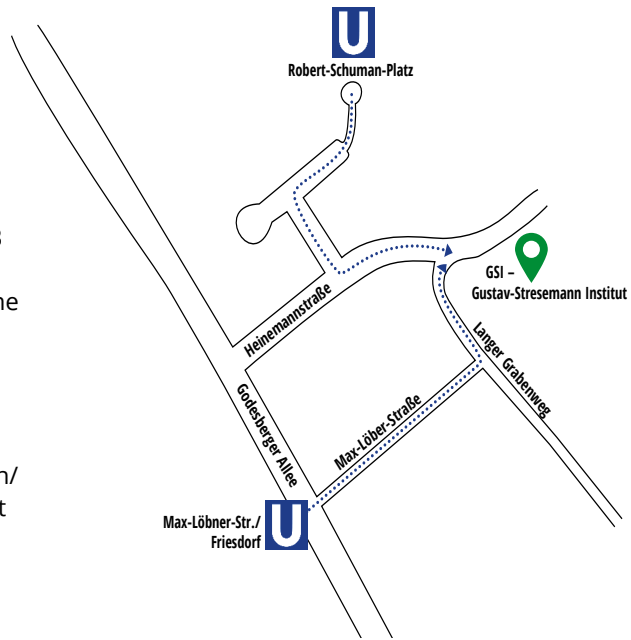

ICLEI - Local Governments for Sustainability is the leading global network of over 1,500 cities, towns and regions committed to building a sustainable future. By helping the ICLEI Network to become sustainable, low-carbon, ecomobile, resilient, biodiverse, resource-efficient, healthy and happy, with a green economy and smart infrastructure, we impact over 20% of the global urban population. www.iclei.org
